Five Ways to Safely Ring in the New Year

No doubt about it - 2020 has been a year to remember - and for many - a year to bid good riddance! Here are some ideas courtesy of Good Housekeeping to help keep your New Year's Eve celebratory and safe.

Host a Virtual Dance Party! - Gather friends and family on a social video conferencing program, and share a Spotify playlist. Allow attendees to edit the playlist, adding their favorite songs!

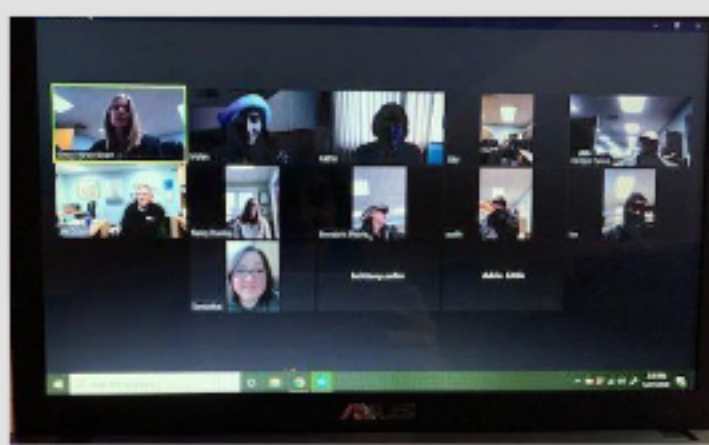

Deck Your Halls - Make your home feel like a fancy night on the town with decorations just for New Year's Eve. If you're socializing on Zoom or another video conferencing program, up the ante with a decorating contest and a prize.

Dress For the Occasion - Let's be honest: no matter how ambitious you may have been in March to continue varied use of your wardrobe, we've all spend one too many days in sweatpants this year. Break out your fanciest dress (and maybe even some shoes) and welcome 2021 with open, bespangled arms

Recap Your Positives - Take time to reflect on and list the positives this year: maybe you picked up a new hobby, or finally finished Game of Thrones!

Be Your Own Bartender - Make the night extra special with a unique cocktail recipe - find a recipe you might never have tried and go all out. Feeling ambitious? Consider a recipe by Chicago's legendary The Aviary .

The Punchlist

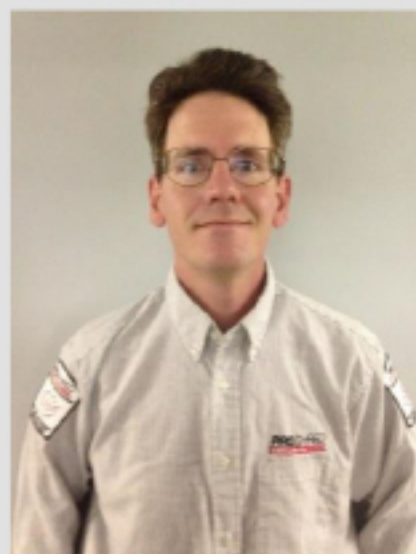

PROSHRED® Celebrates the Holidays!

No pandemic or snow storm could stop the PROSHRED® Family from their annual Holiday Celebration! Complete with a Secret Santa, Jim's famous brisket, ugly sweaters, and plenty of Good Cheer, we reflected on our gratitude for all our customers, and each other.

A very happy, safe, and positive New Year from our Family to you and yours!
